

MACE ENERGY METHOD (MEM™) PRACTITIONER CERTIFIED TRAINING

There are three levels of training offered to people interested in using MEM to assist others, and further to become a certified MEM Practitioner. The only pre-requisite is to have experienced a MEM Session with an advanced practitioner. This gives the future trainee an appreciation and understanding of how MEM works, in other words, they acquire a subjective reality. Reading provides objective reality, but no amount of reading will provide the essential subjective reality.

---

MEM LEVEL I—BASIC UPSET HANDLING

This course trains people how to perform basic MEM upset handling. It involves about 10 hours training. After a short internship to prove competence the student is Certified as a Level 1 MEM practitioner. This course provides a valuable tool for teachers, parents, social and health care workers to easily defuse life's upsets or traumas.

---

MEM LEVEL II—CERTIFIED MEM PRACTITIONER

This course trains students on the principles and theories of Causism, including the chronological development of the Mace Method. It includes the basic skills needed to dis-create any negative identity and how to locate all negative identities and relationship problems. The graduates who use the method are called Mace Energy Method Practitioners (MEM), not counsellors, for the method is totally devoid of self-disclosure by the client and advise on the part of the practitioner, even if asked for.

The training incorporates four modules containing illustrations and video's to graphically interpret the many abstract and intangible ideas involved. As part of the training, both in-house and distant learning, all students receive personal sessions, that may be needed to address anything triggered by the material covered or through life's circumstances. As part of the training fee, all students receive whatever sessions are necessary to handle anything triggered by the material as well as anything that has been triggered by life and living. Once enrolled, the very first action for all students is to eliminate any problem whatsoever associated with learning, training, education or study, so that they are then totally free of any hang-ups that impede their ability to learn effectively. As a matter of record, to date not one trainee has been free of some upset or loss to do with previous learning / study and some have several—WHO HAS NOT BEEN TO SCHOOL?!

---

PRE-REQUISITES

The one pre-requisite to training is to have had a full session from a trained practitioner. The reason for this pre-requisite is that the method is so revolutionary there is no other modality with which it can be compared, so a future trainee needs a session to appreciate and understand how it works, in other words to acquire subjective reality. Reading provides objective reality, but no amount of reading will provide the essential subjective reality. From a practical point of view it would be totally unrealistic for someone to help others at a professional level if they themselves lacked personal experience with the material. It would be a case of the blind leading the blind. This aspect is even more important should a practitioner wish to train others—it would then really be a case of the blind leading the blind!

---

TRAINING SCHEDULE

The Mace Energy Method gets its power from its simplicity and in keeping with that, the training course has been stripped of any superfluous data, which is why it is so comparatively brief, but its apparent brevity in no way detracts from its effectiveness. About 60 hours of student time (plus some home reading) for the course is average. Students are scheduled for one day a week only, because they need time to assimilate the new data. Full time study was tried to expedite training, but as another example of the empirical nature of the work, it was abandoned as it did not produce satisfactory results. Lectures and video sessions by Founder John Mace, are provided as part of the training that covers all the key data from his research.

The theory training is followed by practice using the unique procedures, then an internship follows, when the student can produce good results they are Certified as a Mace Energy Practitioner IACP.

MEM Level II training can be provided in-house or via correspondence. It typically takes 10-12 weeks to obtain certification and part-time options are available that can extend to 6 months.

In House Training is limited to 2- 4 participants which maximises individual involvement and personalises the training. Trainees attend one day per week only, as this allows time to assimilate the new data.

Distance Learning is conducted via Skype or telephone and students are trained individually and can set their own schedules.

---

MEM LEVEL III—ADVANCED MEM PRACTITIONER

This course provides advanced techniques for the MEM Practitioner. Procedures for acute addictions, psychosomatics and MEM surrogacy are taught. This one module is covered in approx 10 hours of higher level personalized training that will allow further refinement of MEM skills.

MEM Level III training can also be provided in-house or via correspondence.

---

The Mace Energy Method has been recognized and endorsed by the IICT in Australia and the United Kingdom

International Institute for Complementary Therapists

For further information and our MEM training fees, please contact one of our global MEM Trainers listed on our International website

<http://www.maceenergymethod.com/mem-practitioner-training>